HON. E. W. GANNT .- The address Hon F. W. Gasht, to the people of Arkan- and Lee: sas, a portion of which is given on our first page this week, is attracting much attention. It is being circulated in pampblet form. It is, all things considered, a striking document, in Europe, will have, no doubt, considerable effect. The Louisville Journal, speaking of the writer, has the following interesting paragraph. We first knew Mr. Quant as a poet. Although his profession was the law, he sent us several poetical productions many years ago from Arkadelphia, Arkansas. He was elected to Congress at the last Congressional election in that State, and, up to the breaking out of the rebellion, be was a Union man. He soon afterwards went into the rebel army, and, in the course of his military experience, was twice taken prisoner. He has seen and heard a great deal on both sides an intelligent, able and brave man, with now within the Federal lines in Arkansas.

Escape of John Morgan-Particulars.

The escape of this notorious marander and freebooter, not a whit better than a buccancer fered, it can be but disgraceful to those charged with his custody. There must have been inexensable negligence, if not deeper guilt somewhere or it never would have occurred. We give details below.

The Columbus Journal has the following account of the manner in which the escape of John Morgan and his confederates was accom-

In some points of view, the escape of John Morgan, with six of his captains, from the Obio Penitentiaty, on last Friday night, in the most humiliating circumstance that has ever occurred in the State of

That there was negligence and a lack of proper vigilance, is evident to the most casual observor. We give the result of our observations, obtained by a personal examination of the manner in which they effected their escape from prison.

There were seven prisoners including John Morgan who escaped. There names are Gen. John H. Morgan, Captains J. C. Bennett, L. D. Hockersmith, T. H. Hines, Run and Verdiersville. G. S. Magee, Ralph Sheldon and S. B Taylor. All these prisoners, with the exception of Morgan, had their cells on the first range, or ground floor of the east wing of the prison, on the south side. Morgan's cell was on the second range, on the same side of the wing An air-chamber, built and arched with brick, runs the whole length of the wing, directly under the cell feet high, and at the end, and fastened almost in an impassible condition. into the foundation of the main wall, strong bars of iron were placed. This chamber municated from this chamber out at the top of the building by means of fines built in the middle, or partition wall. The floors of the cells were made, first by the brick arching over the air-chamber, shout nine inches thick, then a heavy layer of mortar made from sand and lime, and then the last coating, or that which served as a floor, thick. Perhaps the whole thickness is two feet. The first hole made through the floor to the air-chamber, was in cell No. 20 accupied by Capt. Hines. It was in the corner of his cell, under the bedstead, and we should judge was easily done. After get ting into the chamber below, he had plenty of room to reconnoitre and work. The balance of the six holes were made from below by removing the bricks and mortar, leaving only the thin crust of cement, which, when all things were ready, could easily be broken by the heel. After getting into the chamber, the question was how to get out into the other world. They first went to the end of the chamber, and removed the foundation stones about four feet in length; but here they met with an obstruction. There had been about 20,000 bushels of stone coal piled up against the end of the prison, through which they were unable to make a hole, and their game was blocked Nothing daunted, they went back about twenty five feet, and selecting a spot, dug a hole from near the top of the arch, South, and came up under the foundation of the main wall, opposite the female prisas, inside of the prison yard, and then pro eceded to the Southeast gate, and by means of a rope made out of bed-ticking formed into long links, scaled the walls and made their escape. From the purport of Capt. Hines letter to the Warden, found in the air chamber after their escape, it is evident that their reason for delaying the time for their escape seven days, was to wait until a dark night, or that the arrangement between Dick Morgan and John in regard to the exchange of cells could not be effected with safety until Friday night. The letter referred to had the following superscription: - Hon. (11) N. Merion, The failhful, The Vigit ant. On the inside was the following, writen in a good hand:

CASTLE MERION, CELL No. 20) Nov. 27th, 1863. Commencement—Nov. 4th 1863. Conclusion—Nov. 20th, 1863. No. of hours for labor per day-3. Tools-Two small knives.

BATTLE OF FRIDAY .- The Tribune's corres- ly pushing the enemy's rear. ordent furnishes the following account of the battle on Friday between the forces of Meade

"The 3d followed by the 6th corps, on Thursday afternoon, crossed the Rapidan at Jacobs' Mills, with no opposition except a shot or two from a few rebel videttes stationed at the ford. of Wheeler's entire division of 5,000 On reaching the south side of the river, troops, these corps pursued the road leading to Morton's Ford, a few miles above, when they took a plank road to the left, in order to st rike the continuation of the road from Culpepper to Robertson's Tavern. On Thursday night and inflicting considerable loss upon Gen. they rested near Jones' House, and on Friday morning continued their march to effect a junction with General Warren's corps.

"General Bard's division of the 3d corps was in the advance, and as the head of the column reached a small clearing, it was greeted by a volley of rebel skirmishers. In relation to affairs in front on Saturday, i is stated that at daylight our army lay across the Fredericksburg and Orange turnpike, at Robertson's Tavera about twelve miles from Orange Court House. > The enemy retreated at night leaving their dead and wounded on the field. Owing to the enemy's change of position it became necessary for us to leave them there. Their numbers greatly exceeded ours.

All was quiet in front on Sunday. Monday morning at eight o'clock, our batteries were ordered to open. The siege train was in position in front of Sedgwick's command after half an hour's slow cannonading to which the enemy feebly responded. An attack ordered by Gen. Warren on the left came upon the enemy stronger in numbers and position than was anticipated, and asked for further instructions. The forward movement was then checked and all firing censed.

A N. Y. Herald correspondent, who left the Army of the Potemac at 3 p. m.

Monday, says: Just before leaving the field everthing was in readiness for an assault. I have little doubt that our forces now occupy the enemy's works on Mine Run. My imprescion is that he had left the night before in the direction of Gordensville, leaving only force enough to make a show in our front. When I left an assault had been ordered to be made upon their works by the infantry with the bayonet under cover of artillery fire. Cannonading commenced before I left, and continued some time without any reply from the enemy, and finally esased entirely before I reached Fly Ford.

The rebel lines are several miles in front of Orange Court House, directly to the East of that place, and along the banks of Mill Creek, not Mine Ran, which is several miles this side nearer Fredericksburg.

There are many preparations sold under the name of Bitters, put up in quart Bottler, compounded of the cheapet whisky or common rum, costing from 20 to 40 cents per gallon, the taste disguish by Anise or Coriander Seed.

This class of Bitters has caused, and will continue to cause, as long as they can be sold, hundeeds to die the death of the drunkard. By their use the system is kept continually under the influence of Alceholic Stimulants of the worst kind, the desire for Liquor is created and kept up, and the result is all the horrors attendant upon a drunkard's life and death.

For those who deairs and sell kace a Liquor Bitters, we publish the following recipe:—Ger One Bottle HOOFLAND'S GERSAN BITTERS, and mix with Three Quarts of Good Brandy or Whisky, and the result will be a preparation that will far excel in medicinal virtues and true excellence any of the numerous Liquor Bitters in the market, and will cost much less. Testifying, of their own personal knowledge, to the beneficial effects and medical virtues of these Bitture. [From Rev. J. Newton Brown, D. D., Editor of the Encyclo-pedia of Religious Knowledge.]

Although not disposed to favor or recommend Patent Medicines in general, through distrust of their ingredients and effects. I yet know of no anticient reasons why a man may not testify to the benefits he beliaves himself to have received from any simple preparation, in the hope that he may thus contribute to the benefit of others.

1 do this the more readily in regard to Hoodand's German Bitters, prepared by Dr. C. M. Jaekson of this city, because I was prejudiced against them for many years, under the impression that they were chiefly an alcoholic mixture. I am indebted to my friend Robert Shoemaker, Esq., for the removal of this prejudice by proper tests, and for encouragement to try them, when suffering from great and long con, timed debility. The use of three bottles of those Bitters, at the beginning of the present year, was followed by evident relief and restoration to a degree of bodily and mental vigor which I had not telt for six months before, and had almost despaired of regaining I therefore thank God and my friend for directing me to the use of them.
